The landuse laws were put into place for times like these; when there is pressure to change them. Now is the time to stand firm and stop sprawl into Oregon's forest and farmland.

As more and more people come to Oregon, they will put more pressure on the land that is so important to grow our food and protect our wildlife/forests. It would be better served to start talking about human over-population as we approach 9 billion people on earth. Do not weaken our land use laws!
