I am torn on this subject. I do feel that EAs are just as capable as CPAs on tax matters, and if CPAs are exempt from taking the OR portion of the exam, EAs should be as well. However, continuing education is crucial, now more than ever, as the current administration implements significant changes often. I also think that it is important for those working under EAs to have credentials. So, all in all, I oppose this proposed legislation for the above-stated reasons.
