Supporting this bill is a vote for common-sense affordability. It ensures that when a city grows, it grows for everyone—not just the highest bidders. By allowing for walkable, bikeable neighborhoods with diverse housing types, we are creating the kind of Oregon where a young family can afford their first home and a senior can find a place that fits their budget.

HB 4035A stops the endless arguments over lines on a map and focuses on what really matters: getting roofs over heads and building neighborhoods where people can actually afford to live, work, and play.
