

Submitter: Alex Heintz
On Behalf Of:
Committee: House Committee On Climate, Energy, and Environment
Measure, Appointment or HB2961
Topic:

If we want to make our goals to reduce greenhouse gas emissions, we need transition to electric vehicles. A major barrier is lack of easy access to EV charging and this is particularly acute for people who live in apartments. I just chose an apartment primarily because it had EV parking (the Steward in Tigard, the first all electric multifamily building there—I move in next week). It makes so much sense to build it with the apartment rather than coming back later and retrofitting it at much greater expense and complexity. People who rent should have the same access as people who live in single family homes. Do the right thing and pass this bill.