Measure: HB3414

All developments and new buildings should follow city codes already in place.
The codes are present for reasons other than to the developers' need to make fortunes.

I know city restrictions often seem unreasonable, but developers should not be able to by-pass them.

Nothing was more infuriating than building a house carefully to code 1994-1997, and then having the city code relaxed with the removal of the P-zone around the source of Fanno Creek in 1998.
